Late afternoon midsummer day,
Discrete perfect sidewalk cafe –
Sparkling crystal silver sunlight,
Worried shadows left and right.

Assertive heart sisterly love,
Cloud caressing sky above –
Senses the moments turning timeless,
Unhurried warmth simple fineness.

Chooses her words with conscious care,
Analytical critical strikingly aware –
On helping others she says life depends,
Of shoulders the blame to make amends.

When you see the world's just a little magic,
Wish for wings fly the edge of tragic –
Or a fairy appear give the play a twist,
Escape disaster in an autumn kiss.
