

microtheatres

home, workplace, school, family, circle of friends public spaces, objects, architecture our mental landscapes scenes nest in one another each embedded with story we the players keep the sets in place systems of thought and knowledge operate beneath the conscious level defining boundaries of behavior curbing what we can imagine setting limits on the possible notwithstanding one's religious beliefs explanation of the universe, cosmic schema in complex modern networked societies such as ours

the locus of power resides in the microtheatres the agents themselves maintain the Order from individual Personality to Living Planet who we are to One Another and to Earth the Narratives we tell Ourselves, the parts play how we spend our Sunday afternoons, evening hours who we take seriously, what we see as possible how we measure success, worth emerge in sacred lines of Personal script were we to reclaim our Freedom we could bring our Love from quiet return from nightmare to dream deferred unite this time along the lines of sharing helping One Another our Microtheatres wait to host Creation