

the stars II

from the first moment Earth and her stellar nursery coalesced to the night polymers invented giving and the dawn of the nucleated cell Life evolved inextricably entangled with the spinning / swirling of the Sun Moon and planets the Stars at the moment of birth offer a topology of personality a window on a psychological dimension a psychic map they can help one understand Oneself yet as a living complex of genetics influenced by culture and experience divided by opportunity multiplied by the possibilities free will enables the Stars aren't going to tell us everything less about the future (we can't even predict the weather) we create the Selves we become by the choices we make providing a common language for how we individually experience the World including intuitions of Self / patterns of feeling and thinking the Stars undermine the ego idea of a separate Self convey engagement with a Subject Universe identity as Earth would know us in another voice / another name in script a moment her planetary dream the natal chart holds the notes of our first moment by the heavenly symphony / the stellar choir they call us to our Selves / to our World / to One Another
